Wonderings from the Workbench

Today makes it two weeks since I made my move to Aberdeen and things are going well. I almost have all of my boxes unpacked in my room and I have even had a few projects come through the workshop. Saturday morning I was out on a bike ride and I couldn't resist the lure of a sale sign pointing to an old garage door. As I was snooping around the pile of tools I saw an old hand plane, a Bailey #8. It was rusted and dull and had some broken pieces but I knew it had to come home with me. After some time on the bench I got it cleaned up, sharpened up and back together making perfect, thin shavings. That old tool went from a useless piece of steel to doing what it was designed to do, it only took a little vision and a little effort.

There are times in our spiritual life that we can get to feeling a little dull, and maybe a little rusty. If we bring those feelings to the Lord he will bring us to his workbench and get us set right and ready to get back to doing His work. As we continue our journey through ordinary time we can allow it to be a time of quiet renewal, listening to the Lord as He speaks and allowing Him to work on us readying us for any task He has in mind.
