FROM THE WORKBENCH

There has been much rejoicing around St. Marys this week. I came in for confessions the other evening and the sun was still shining through the stained glass at 5pm. There was a football game with a great catch. It is above freezing as I write this, and my chair is off the workbench and back in the office.

For me the last part might have been the best. I was able to spend a day finishing projects, putting away tools and clearing off the bench. I even got around to putting up some shelves and vacuuming the far corners that I don't always get to.

I find it refreshing to spend time between projects putting things away, sharpening tools and setting everything right. It makes it all the sweeter when the next project begins and you are good and ready.

I have always appreciated this little piece of Ordinary time that we get right after Christmas. It is a time for each of us to stop, breathe and get ready for what is to come. We have been given a few weeks to set our house in order. With these days of Ordinary time we can take inventory of our spiritual life, and see if there are any places we need to focus on so we will be ready for Lent when it comes.
