Fr. Michael's Musings

This past week, Fr. Mark, Deacon Peter and I gathered with the clergy of the Diocese of Sioux Falls for our annual Clergy Days in Oacoma.

They were wonderful days to reflect and relax and simply to enjoy the gift of one another. It is easy to forget sometimes that priests and deacons are not ordained to serve a parish, but a diocese. These days are beautiful reminders of this gift, our unity and brotherhood.

We prayed for the deceased priests and deacons of our diocese, and that is always moving, to hear the names of those who served and loved in the diocese before us.

We prayed for vocations to the priesthood and the diaconate...as I hope you do as well. The Lord is always calling us to holiness of life, and He also calls us to a particular way to find that holiness. Some young men are being called to the priesthood...right now, in our parish.

How do we help them to hear that call? How do we give them the encouragement to listen and respond? These men are born in a family, nourished in a parish, and then serve in a diocese. Each part is needed for them to hear that call.

Perhaps the Lord is calling you, or your son, or your grandson. Help them to listen and rejoice when the Lord says, "Come, follow me!"

Have a fantastic Autumn week of joy!
