Fr. Michael's Musings

Well, the Brown County Fair is done and college students are off and our schools are filled again.

Public and Catholic, our students are blessed with the opportunity to grow and learn, to make friends and to be formed.

These are special days, the first days of the new school year; and they are a good challenge to us as well.

Those of us who have graduated, probably for the last time, with our various diplomas and degrees, may think that our time of learning has drawn to an end.

Yet, we are never to stop being learners, studying the mysteries of life, growing each day, and deepening our faith. One of my favorite questions to ask students when I see them leaving school at the end of the day is: “What do you know now that you didn't know when you woke up this morning?”

All of us should be able to answer that question. Keep learning, keep growing, and never, ever presume that your faith education ended at Confirmation. There is so much to learn, to discover, and it keeps us young. Trust me, watch the kids at recess if you need to remember the youthful vigor of school.
