From the Workbench

My nails came in this week. All boxed with care, lightly oiled and beautiful to behold. As beautiful as nails can be.

Excitedly I took them to the workshop and proceeded to put them to use. They felt nice in the hand and drove in smoothly and held exceptionally well (even when I wanted to remove one.)

Everything was going swimmingly as I was nailing around the edge of my box and then crack- the nail split the board. I didn't change my technique, I got to the heart of the board where the wood was harder and it didn't give, it broke.

The psalmist this week gives us the guidance, "If today you hear his voice, harden not your heart." The Lord is always working on our hearts in love. Each day Jesus is showing us how we are being called to grow in love. When we hear his voice we need to respond with an open heart, ready to love however the Lord is calling us. The danger comes when we close ourselves off to the Love of Christ, we can get self centered and hard hearted. If we remain away from Jesus in our hard heartedness we do not love as we should and we cannot be open to those Jesus puts in our paths.

So let us ask Jesus to come into our hearts this week so we can hear his voice and heed his call.

Fr. Lacey

Just a Thought

Looking forward to his return!
