

Welcome to

The Church of Saint Luke

A Roman Catholic Community of Disciples

FIRST READING: Isaiah 50:5-9a
SECOND READING: James 2:14-18
GOSPEL: Mark 8:27-35

And he asked them, But who do you say that I am?" Peter said to him in reply, You are the Christ. Then he warned them not to tell anyone about him. Mk 8:29-30

Reflection:

Reflect upon/Share about how you experience the Lord in your life? How would you express, in words, who He is to you? How does the way you live your life show that He is who you say he is? What one thing can you change, in your life, to proclaim more effectively who He is to you?

Alternative:

Is Jesus special to you? If so, what makes him special to you? If he is not special to you, why do you think he is so special to others? What do you want him to be for you? How can you let him be that?

September 13, 2015
Twenty-Fourth Sunday
In Ordinary Time

The Lord God is my help, therefore I am not disgraced.
— Isaiah 50: 7

Mission Statement

The Church of St. Luke is a joyful, welcoming, caring, active family of believers striving to grow in knowledge of and love for God and each other. Challenged by the Word, nurtured by the Eucharist, and enlivened by the Spirit, we seek to live the message of Jesus in serving the needs of others both within our Parish and in the larger community.

FROM: THE PASTOR

Dear Parishioners,

I've been reading news accounts of the incident concerning local Chaldean soccer players on Southwest Airlines. When I heard about it I was saddened and a little bit angered. As I thought about it I wasn't sure with whom I was angry. I think I was angry that the situation happened and that human beings too easily escalate these types of situations. I find the whole thing an embarrassment but I'm not sure who the cause of my embarrassment is.

There are not really many facts being reported and some of what is being reported seems contradictory. And, I'm not even sure our quest for the facts is the right quest. It seems to me that the current quest for the facts, at least, is only oriented toward assigning responsibility for a situation which went horribly wrong. Wouldn't it be more fruitful if our search for facts was oriented more toward how to prevent these types of misunderstandings in the future?

One of the most difficult things for me was to read the comments posted by readers of the news articles. The prejudice and hatred that is evident in them is a huge embarrassment to me but this time I know the cause of my embarrassed, humanity itself and American humanity at that. For a country that considers itself a Christian country, there are too many statements and acts abhorrent to Christianity. And, don't get me wrong. I'm not talking about all Americans or the airline stewardesses. I don't know what's in their hearts. I'm talking about the commenters on the news stories who are all too open with the darkness in their hearts. Thank God my personal experience of people includes few like these.

I don't know the young Chaldeans involved in this incident. I do know many young Chaldeans, though, and I know them to be young people desiring goodness in life and desiring to be a source of goodness. I hear many stories of Chaldeans which paint them in a different light. I know that there are weeds and chaff in any group of human beings.

I don't know the stewardesses in this situation. My experience of airline attendants is that they are usually sweet and willing to sell me drinks at any time although I have quit purchasing drinks on flights because of the ridiculous prices. I know that many Americans, I assume that includes many airline attendants, to be afraid of anything Middle-Eastern. With what's going on in the world today, can you blame them. I'm guessing they can't distinguish between Muslims speaking any Middle-Eastern language and Chaldeans speaking the language of Jesus. I can't either.

So what do we do in situations like this? I think we stop saying "I'm right" and "I have rights" and try to have compassion for the other. I think, and I heard this in a book about marriage, that if I'm struggling for my own interests, I'm doomed to fail in relationship. If I'm struggling for the relationship, I'm pretty much guaranteed success and fruitfulness.

We should learn this truth in our personal relationships but we can practice it as a culture too. Especially in a culture that is so multi-cultural, we should try to understand and work with the other rather than set ourselves against the other. What occurred on that flight was a failure in relationship, a casual relationship as many are, but still relationship; two or more human beings interrelating.

I don't know the specifics of what happened on that airline flight but I'm pretty sure that what Jesus would have wanted to happen, didn't!

Fr. Ron

TODAY'S READINGS

First Reading — The Lord GOD is my help; who will prove me wrong? (Isaiah 50:5-9a).

Psalm — I will walk before the Lord, in the land of the living (Psalm 116).

Second Reading — Faith, if it does not have works, is dead (James 2:14-18).

Gospel — Jesus asked his disciples, "Who do you say that I am?" (Mark 8:27-35).

SERVANT

Sometimes the hour and the person meet. Sometimes, when a task or mission is set upon our shoulders, we know we must meet our responsibilities and we are ready. These are heady and invigorating times. The first reading and the Gospel proclamation today are intimate glimpses of a commencement, an inauguration of a challenging future. In both readings, a sense of gravity prevails.

The first reading is from the mysterious Servant Songs from the book of Isaiah. The person is steadfast and brave. His courage and bravery are not located in his stout heart, but in God. We are reminded, "The Lord GOD opens my ear that I may hear" (Isaiah 50:4), so the servant understands the mission. And twice, "The Lord GOD is my help" (50:7, 9), so that the servant can endure the coming struggle. Copyright © J. S. Paluch Co.

TREASURES FROM OUR TRADITION

It seems obvious to us that Jesus Christ is the Lord of second chances. We need look no further than Peter's denial and rehabilitation for proof. Yet early Christians were more tentative with the gift of forgiveness. For them, every Sunday was an experience of the Lord's power to heal and forgive, yet there were three sins that placed persons at the margins of the community's life. In some places, the rift caused by these sins was permanent. The sins were apostasy (denial of the faith), adultery, and murder. They were particularly detested because of their power to divide and even scatter the community gathered around the Lord's table. Fragile and persecuted communities could crumble and disappear under the weight of a harm done by a public sinner. Sinners were excluded from the community in the hope that "tough love" would help them come to their senses and experience deeper conversion. Inevitably, lists of grave sins grew longer as various bishops added their personal pet peeves to the roster, and more people were required to do public penance. For them, reconciliation was a once-in-a-lifetime experience. Many sinners accepted their condition and hoped for a chance at a deathbed reconciliation by anointing. With more and more people permanently on the outs, the church began to struggle toward the light of the Lord's unfailing gift of reconciliation. —Rev. James Field, Copyright © J. S. Paluch Co

New Documentary Looks at the Last Days of Thomas Merton

September 25th, 2015

7:00pm

At Saint Luke

Thomas Merton, the Trappist monk, “believing beatnik,” and prolific bestselling author, influenced the spiritual journeys of millions of people through books such as The Seven Storey Mountain. His legacy continues to grow today, one hundred years after his birth on January 31, 1915.

Filmmaker Morgan Atkinson has released his third Merton-related documentary this year: The Many Storeys and Last Days of Thomas Merton weaves an indelible portrait of the monk’s final year, colored by the momentous events of the late 1960s. Merton died accidentally while in Bangkok to speak at a conference.
