The Church of Saint Luke

A Roman Catholic Community of Disciples

Fifth Sunday In Ordinary Time
February 7, 2016

I will give thanks to you, O LORD, with all my heart, for you have heard the words of my mouth. — Psalms 138:1

FIRST READING: Isaiah 6:1-2a, 3-8
SECOND READING: 1 Corinthians 15:1-11 [3-8, 11]
GOSPEL: Luke 5:1-11

When Simon Peter saw this (the miraculous catch of fish), he fell at the knees of Jesus and said, "Depart from me, Lord, for I am a sinful man." For astonishment at the catch of fish they had made seized him and all those with him, and likewise James and John, the sons of Zebedee, who were partners of Simon. Jesus said to Simon, "Do not be afraid; from now on you will be catching men." When they brought their boats to the shore, they left everything and followed him.

Reflection: Reflect upon/share about an astonishing experience of success in your life? How might the Lord have been helping you have that success? What is your reaction to knowing the Lord is working with you? How can you use your God given talents to make your successes his successes too?

Alternative: What is the coolest thing that has happened in your life so far? How do you think God was connected to that experience? What do you think you were supposed to learn from that experience?

FROM: THE PASTOR

Dear Parishioners,

I've written a little bit about our "Bridges" study group. We've had several meetings now to discuss a book entitled "Bridges to Sustainable Communities". It talks about what might be viewed as two sides of one coin. One side would be the ideas contained in a book entitled "Getting Ahead in a Just Getting By World" (Getting Ahead). This is a process for facilitating people in poverty to rise out of their situation and become stable. The other side of the coin is the ideas in the "Bridges Out of Poverty" concepts. These ideas are for the whole community. The idea is to help people in poverty, middle class people and people who are wealthy to understand each other and work together to build sustainable communities, communities that are the land of opportunity which America stands for.

My interest in this work stems from prior knowledge of the Getting Ahead process. It was started in Ohio, where I was born and spent many years of my life. And, I have a relationship with an organization which is successfully utilizing these principals. One of the things which impresses me most is the respect they have for people in poverty. They don't expect people in poverty to think and act like middle-class people. They know that people in poverty think and act according to the unwritten rules of survival they learn by living in poverty (The process calls them the hidden rules). We of course live and act according to the unwritten rules of the middle-class which is what helps us be middle-class.

The process invites people in poverty to reflect on their situation and develop an understanding of what poverty means in their lives. They develop a mental model of their situation which deals with more facets than just economic poverty and assesses the situation without blaming themselves or others even as they identify certain actions or structures may contribute to poverty.

The process also invites them to assess their own resources and the resources available to them in the community. The resources they consider are broader than just the economic. They include the financial, of course, and the emotional, the mental and spiritual, the physical, support systems and relationships, integrity, motivation and knowledge of the unwritten rules of their class and of the middle class and those in wealth.

Next, they make a plan for building their resources. This is typically difficult for people in poverty because they live in what Paulo Freire called the tyranny of the moment. He may have been the first to articulate that people in poverty are so caught up in solving the problems of the moment that they do not have future stories like people in the middle-class and people in wealth. The beauty, though, is that they become natural problem solvers. The process helps them develop a future story for themselves and motivates them by demonstrating the difference between what is and what can be.

The beauty of the process is that by participating in the process people in poverty do their own learning, assess the situation themselves and develop their own plan rather than having middle-class solutions imposed upon them. That is not to disparage middle-class solutions but they work best for people who follow the unwritten rules of the middle-class. People in the process are just learning those rules and will put them into effect as they deal with the middle class and rise out of poverty. Also, it seems to be human nature to take ownership of solutions which are ours rather than those imposed from outside of us.

We, as a parish, might choose to have some facilitators trained to guide people through the process. And, we might have some people prepared to journey with participants as they work their action plan, as sort of a support system. At this point nothing is certain. That's why we established the study group. At some time in the future we will try to make appropriate decisions.

Soon I'll share about the Bridges concepts.

In His service,

Fr. Ron

TODAY'S READINGS

First Reading — In a vision Isaiah is called to be a messenger for the LORD of hosts. Isaiah responds, "Send me!" (Isaiah 6:1-2a, 3-8)

Psalm — In the sight of the angels I will sing your praises, Lord (Psalm 138).

Second Reading — Paul reminds us of the gospel he preached through which we are saved, if we believe it (1 Corinthians 15:1-11 [3-8, 11]).

Gospel — Jesus directs Simon to take his boat into deep water for a miraculous catch of fish. Simon and his partners leave all to follow Jesus (Luke 5:1-11). HOLY, HOLY, HOLY!

"Holy, holy, holy!" Ancient languages, like the Hebrew used in the scriptures, did not always have a way to express superlatives in one word. Isaiah could not say God was "holiest," so he used the threefold repetition of the same word. This bit of scriptural minutiae about these "three little words" that we sing at every Mass serves as a reminder that answering God's call has to be grounded in awareness of God's holiness. In Isaiah and in the Gospel passage today, we hear accounts of the revelation of God's power and might: the seraphim in the temple and the miraculous catch of fish. These are not wondrous revelations for their own sakes. They lead to a response in mission, Isaiah's "Here I am, send me!" and the disciples' leaving everything to follow Jesus. And so must our own "Holy, Holy, Holy!" lead us to Christ in the Eucharist every Sunday, and to a life following him day by day. Copyright © J. S. Paluch Co.
