Reflection

Today's second reading warns that a heart consumed with avarice and envy leads to jealousy, strife, conflicts and disputes. A giving heart, in contrast, can sing instead with the Psalmist, "Freely will I offer sacrifice; I will praise your name, O Lord, for its goodness."

Living Stewardship

We are grateful for all stewards who offer welcome and assistance to our newest parishioners, whether through our Hospitality Ministry or right from the pews!

HOLIDAY FAIR RAFFLE TEAM FORMING

As the Holiday Fair will be here before you know it, we are starting to work on organizing our raffles. Our beautiful raffle baskets are one of the highlights of our Fair and rely not only on parishioner donations, but also on generous contributions from our local restaurants and businesses.

We are hoping to develop a team who would be willing to approach these important contributors in our community and ask for either gift cards or merchandise to be donated for the Holiday Fair. The team will be given letters from the parish to carry and distribute as proof of the legitimacy of the event.

So, if you have a willingness to seek donations for a great cause — our Holiday Fair is our largest fundraiser of the year — please contact Lori Zito by stopping by the parish office, emailing to Lzito@stsyvesterli.org or calling directly to ext. 115. HO! HO! HO!

Parish Social Ministry

The goal of Parish Social Ministry is to engage parishioners in social justice and outreach activities that allow us to live out the Gospel call to serve others and to build the Kingdom of God. Clare House is a community space where we offer direct service to our neighbors facing difficulties of all kinds, and expand our understanding and application of Catholic Social Teaching through the use of Praxis. We employ the "See, Judge, Act" Method to examine pressing social problems.

We strive to build authentic relationships with every individual who walks through the door and commit to journey in solidarity with them. We offer assistance to alleviate immediate needs. Clients receive access to: food pantry, thrift shop, case management, advocacy, information and referral, and other resources.

By utilizing education, advocacy, and community organizing we put our faith in action to address structural issues and eliminate systemic injustice. We feed the hungry and ask why they are hungry.

Constructive Feedback?

I welcome your calls, emails, and letters to express feedback on any aspect of our PSM program. Dialogue is essential for clarification of thought. Thank you to those of you who have contacted me. I look forward to continuing the conversation!

On September 3rd, our nation celebrated its 123rd Labor Day and its first Labor Day after the U.S. Supreme Court's unjust and politically-motivated ruling in Janus v. AFSCME. From our beginnings in Chicago in the 1960s, Gamaliel has lifted up the importance of the American labor movement and the significant contributions that working people continue to make to the strength and prosperity of our communities and our nation. In fact, the vast majority of our affiliates in the 16 states in which we work include local labor unions and councils as contributing members to our work of creating structural racial equity, building people's control of government and the economy, and expanding the public sphere.

So am I angry about the efforts of corporate and other private and political interests to move an agenda to consolidate power by changing the structures and institutions of decision-making, ultimately making it harder for regular people to have an impact on the decisions that impact their lives? YOU BET I AM!

But am I also hopeful? YOU BET I AM!

Parish Social Ministry

Last month our affiliates in Missouri—Metropolitan Congregations United (MCU) in metro St. Louis and Metro Organization for Racial and Economic Equity in metro Kansas City (MORE2)—working with labor and community members succeeded in fighting back against those corporate and anti-worker forces who placed Proposition A, a “right to work” initiative, on the August ballot. At the end of the day, Missourians, who considered a similar ballot initiative in 1978, said the same thing, “NO! We support the right of working people to organize and to have a say in the issues that impact the quality of their lives,” by a margin of 67 to 33.

Our leaders and organizers in St. Louis tell us that the win resulted from the convergence of several key efforts: the collaborative work of faith, community and labor; relationship-building in communities across the state through deep canvassing efforts; connection of the issue to two other critical ballot initiatives that have significant impact on the rights of working people and Missouri communities; and a shift in the narrative about what is possible in the state.

What happened in Missouri is being replicated in other places across the Gamaliel Network. Our local organizations are building strong faith, labor, and community collaboratives with an eye toward transforming the dominant narrative that places profits ahead of people and corporations ahead of community into a transformational narrative that celebrates the dignity and worth of all working people and their communities.

So, yes, I am hopeful . . . but more than that I am confident in the future that we are building together that lifts up all people, especially working people.

In Solidarity,
Ana Garcia-Ashley

Ana Garcia-Ashley is the second Executive Director of Gamaliel and the first woman of color and immigrant to lead a national faith-based community organizing network.

The Gamaliel Network is a community organizing network with affiliates in 16 states and 44 regions whose organizing work draws on struggles for justice by people of faith spanning many nations, creeds, and cultures. Gamaliel’s work draws on the sacred writings of its multiple faith traditions—Christian teachings from the Bible, the Torah, Catholic social teaching—as well as the founding principles of American democracy, the U.S. civil rights movement, and many other sources. Above all, Gamaliel’s work begins and ends in an expression of the personal faith and values of its members.
