*Jesus connects PEACE and FORGIVENESS in today's gospel.
 In our families we will only experience peace to the extent we forgive one another.
 Peace is purchased with the currency of forgiveness.*

When we allow our anger and pride to lock out others, we also lock out peace and harmony.

A Note from Fr. Tom

DIVINE MERCY SUNDAY: Today is a day with many names. It's the octave of (8th day after) Easter Sunday. In the old Latin Missal, it was "White Garment Sunday", the last day for the newly baptized to wear their white baptismal garments. In the Church of England, it's "Low Sunday", because it is so much less solemn than the Sunday before. Gregorian Chant fans call it "Quasimodo Sunday", because that was the first word of the antiphon that was chanted at the beginning of Mass ("Just as newborn babes, seek pure spiritual milk", quoting Saint Peter's first letter). In Victor Hugo's novel, that is how the poor hunchback got his name, because the priests of Notre Dame found him abandoned as a baby on the cathedral steps after they had chanted "Quasimodo..." on the Sunday after Easter.

Now Saint John Paul II has given this Sunday still another name: Divine Mercy Sunday. From his twenties to his fifties, the young Karol Wojtyła had lived first under Nazism and then under Communism. He witnessed first-hand how close personal friends were sent to death camps because they happened to be Jewish – or “too Catholic” – or because they had too many leadership qualities. He witnessed the attempt to make the Polish nation into a slave nation. He was a priest and bishop under a system that tried vehemently to make no room for God, and imprisoned those who opposed them. He saw how many good people, even priests and bishops, were paralyzed by fear as they tried to live under such inhumane systems. He pondered deeply the experience of the disciples on the first Easter Sunday, and noticed how they were freed by Jesus’ merciful words and actions:

- He showed them His hands and side to make it clear that the suffering Lord was now the risen Lord. We should notice that His resurrection didn’t erase His wounds. He shows us forever that God welcomes wounded people, because He is one of us.
- “Peace be with you.” How many personal evils do people choose because they don’t know how to obtain peace? Addictions, domination of others, chasing after money (even illegally), manipulating others – all in a misguided attempt to obtain peace, when peace is a gift of Jesus Christ. They don’t realize that all you need to do to obtain peace is to ask Jesus for it.
- “As the Father has sent me, so I send you.” This commission was for the apostles and their successors in a unique way, but it is for all fallen and weak people. No matter what is in our past, no matter what people have told us about how inadequate we are, no matter what shame we are carrying around – still the Lord has chosen each of us for a unique work of sharing His good news. The commission He gives us has some resemblance to the commission that He received from His Father.
- “Receive the Holy Spirit.” We don’t have to pass a qualifying test to be His witnesses; there is no danger of flunking out of His school of service unless we turn our backs on Him. He has placed the very life of God in us. He began His ministry by explaining the text from Isaiah: “The Spirit of the Lord is upon me.” Now He has sent the Holy Spirit on us to empower us to do His work.
- “Whose sins you forgive are forgiven them, and whose sins you retain are retained.” In these words Jesus gave His apostles His own authority to forgive sins. But in a wider sense, He gives each of His followers the authority to forgive those who hurt them.

Divine Mercy devotions for our area will be held at Glandorf, beginning at 1 p.m.

MOTHER ANGELICA: I’ve always thought that it must be a special grace to die on Easter Sunday. This grace was given to Mother Angelica who started a TV network in a garage, and grew it to a state-of-the-art broadcasting complex with about 400 employees, all for the sake of evangelizing and spreading the truths of the Catholic faith. People who followed her much more closely than I have said plenty about her, and so I hesitate to add more. One thing that should not be forgotten is her sense of humor. Saint Theresa had said, “God deliver us from sad saints”; Mother Angelica was certainly not a sad saint. She had a way of coming up with the perfect one-liner for any situation. I found a list of her one-liners at <http://tomperna.org/2016/03/28/12-sayings-of-mother-angelica-that-made-me-laugh-out-loud/>.

My loudest laugh came from her story of her meeting with a woman after Mass who complained about the priest’s homily. “His preaching ability left something to be desired, but then it’s the Word you listen to, not the way it’s presented. So this woman was complaining and I asked her, ‘How much did you put in the collection?’ She said, ‘A quarter.’ I said, ‘What do you want for a quarter, Bishop Sheen?’”

ENTERING THE CHURCH: I found some interesting facts about adult converts to the Church. Results seem to indicate that the Archdiocese of Cincinnati had the greatest number of newly baptized and confirmed adults in the United States at this year’s Easter Vigil: 880. Usually it’s one of the fast-growing cities down South, like Atlanta or Houston; or one of our very largest cities, like New York or Los Angeles that “leads the league.” But this year it’s our neighbor to the south. Here are a few lists of converts in the Church’s history:

Converts who are canonized, or on their way: St. Elizabeth Seton, Ven. Cornelia Connelly, Dorothy Day, and a great number who became Catholic and then were martyred when Henry VIII and Elizabeth I were persecuting the Church.

Celebrities who converted: John Wayne, Gary Cooper, Don Adams (from “Get Smart”), Faye Dunaway, “Buffalo Bill” Cody.

Converted at the last minute: Dutch Schultz, Hans Franck (Nazi governor-general of Poland; the only person executed at Nuremberg who accepted the ministry of a priest).

Converted and then left the Church (pray for them): Henry Ford II, Ernest Hemingway.

Screenwriter Gene Fowler summed it up well when he wrote, “Why did I become a Catholic? To that question I would ask in return, ‘Where else can an old man go?’ It is a Church that for almost 2,000 years has been a refuge of sinners and for the poor. And I have been both sinful and poor during a life of incautious impulses, careless mischiefs, bad investments in business and in pleasures. And even today I have to make frequent visits to the church when the horned fellow catches me napping. He never sleeps, you know....”

All this comes from an article at <http://www.ncregister.com/site/article/why-the-famous-and-infamous-came-home-to-the-church/#ixzz44Pqdap9b>.

SACRAMENT OF CONFIRMATION: Next Sunday about 45 of our young people will be confirmed at 2 p.m. Their preparation began more than a year ago. We welcome them into the ranks of people who are witnesses for their Faith.

Father Tom
