ST. JOSEPH CATHOLIC CHURCH

FROM FR. MIKE:

Many of you are familiar with Bishop Robert Barron, one of the auxiliary bishops for the Archdiocese of Los Angeles and a main contributor to Word on Fire, a Catholic organization focused on evangelization. Bishop Barron was originally ordained a priest for the Archdiocese of Chicago and was actually one of my philosophy professors when I was attending seminary there. I recently listened to a podcast provocatively titled "5 Reasons Catholics Don't Evangelize." (wordonfireshow.com/episode84). His first reason why we do not evangelize much is that we feel too nervous about sharing our faith. Bishop Barron's response to this is that the only way you overcome inexperience with any activity is by trying it out and learning as you go along. It may also help to find someone who has some experience that could coach you. To be better at evangelizing is not unlike sports in that practice makes a big difference. I would suggest that today's gospel adds another layer we need to factor into our thinking. If the Kingdom of God is like a hidden treasure found in a field that a person will sell everything to buy, then that means that we have something of value to share with others. This complete buy-in means that we should feel nervous about not sharing our faith and the wonderful things Jesus does in our life. Perhaps this different form of nervousness can overcome our initial hesitancy to evangelize and thus compel us to engage in those conversations when the topic of faith comes up.

DEL PADRE MIGUEL:

Muchos de ustedes están familiarizados con el obispo Robert Barron, uno de los obispos auxiliares de la Arquidiócesis de Los Ángeles y uno de los principales colaboradores de Word on Fire, una organización católica centrada en la evangelización. El Obispo Barron fue originalmente ordenado sacerdote para la Arquidiócesis de Chicago y fue uno de mis profesores de filosofía cuando asistí al seminario. Recientemente escuché un podcast provocativamente titulado "5 razones por las que los católicos no evangelizan." (wordonfireshow.com/episode84). Su primera razón por la que no evangelizamos mucho es que nos sentimos muy nerviosos por compartir nuestra fe. La respuesta del obispo Barron a esto es que la única manera de superar la inexperiencia con cualquier actividad es probándola y aprendiendo a medida que avanza. También puede ayudar a encontrar a alguien que tiene cierta experiencia que podría entrenarle. Ser mejor en la evangelización no es diferente de los deportes en que la práctica hace una gran diferencia. Yo sugeriría que el evangelio de hoy agrega otra capa que necesitamos tener en cuenta en nuestro pensamiento. Si el Reino de Dios es como un tesoro escondido que se encuentra en un campo que entonces una persona va a vender todo para comprar, entonces eso significa que tenemos algo de valor para compartir con los demás. Esta comprensión completa significa que debemos sentirnos nerviosos por no compartir nuestra fe y las cosas maravillosas que Jesús hace en nuestra vida. Tal vez esta forma diferente de nerviosismo puede superar nuestra vacilación inicial para evangelizar y así obligarnos a participar en esas conversaciones cuando surge el tema de la fe.
