From Father Mike

I hope you are as challenged as I am by today's first reading from the Acts of the Apostles, which describes the seemingly perfect community that was "of one heart and mind, and no one claimed that any of his possessions was his own, but they had everything in common." This communal support was such that "[t]here was no needy person among them." Now, in case you think this is too idealistic, the very next story in Acts shows a married couple, Ananias and Sapphira, selling their property but not sharing all the proceeds, yet they still sought accolades for their alleged generosity. Living life in common is always a challenge for Christians, and while at times difficult, it is never optional. As Catholics, we firmly believe that you are not an authentic Christian without being engaged in a community with other Christians. The Catholic version of this community is a parish, within which there are various smaller communities of support, study, and outreach. Engaging in this communal life means that, beyond showing up for Mass, a disciple of Jesus interacts with fellow parishioners. A way to increase the Easter effect in your life is to look at ways to become more engaged in Christ's Body of the church and in the lives of your sisters and brothers here at St. Joseph Parish.

Del Padre Miguel

Espero que estén tan desafiados como yo con la primera lectura de hoy de los Hechos de los Apóstoles, que describe la comunidad aparentemente perfecta que era "de un solo corazón y mente, y nadie afirmó que ninguna de sus posesiones era suya, pero tenían todo en común." Este apoyo comunal era tal que "no había ninguna persona necesitada entre ellos." Ahora, en caso de que piensen que esto es demasiado idealista, la próxima historia en Hechos muestra a una pareja casada, Ananías y Safira, vendiendo sus propiedades pero sin compartir todas las ganancias, sin embargo, todavía buscaban elogios por su supuesta generosidad. La vida en común es siempre un desafío para los cristianos, y aunque a veces es difícil, nunca es opcional. Como católicos, creemos firmemente que uno no es un cristiano auténtico sin involucrarse en una comunidad con otros cristianos. La versión católica de esta comunidad es una parroquia, dentro de la cual hay varias comunidades más pequeñas de apoyo, estudio y alcance. Participar en esta vida comunitaria significa que, más allá de presentarse a misa, un discípulo de Jesús interactúa con otros feligreses. Una forma de aumentar el efecto de la Pascua en su vida es buscar maneras de involucrarse más en el Cuerpo de Cristo de la iglesia y en las vidas de sus hermanas y hermanos aquí en la Parroquia de San José.
