A WORD FROM THE PASTOR

If you could have anything you wanted, what would it be? Without giving it much thought, many would choose power, wealth, pleasure, or honor. Over the centuries, philosophers and theologians have responded “happiness.” Aristotle observed that no person deliberately chooses to be unhappy; therefore, we wish to be happy, and we look for happiness, even fleeting, wherever we can find it. Sometimes this leads to good choices, and other times it leads to unhappiness. Saint Pope John Paul II’s great encyclical Veritatis Splendor begins with the question “What Must I do”? What must I do to find happiness and, ultimately, salvation. What choices must I make to live in right relationship with God and neighbor? That is the moral life, a life of virtue, and this life leads to happiness.

Happiness itself is can be divided into four levels in ascending order of happiness. The first (in Latin) is laetus, or, happiness in a thing. I bought a new car, and, for a time, it makes me happy. But we all know that such happiness in a thing can be short-lived. We also know that there is more to happiness than this.

The second level of happiness is felix, or, happiness by comparison. I am a better athlete than X. I have more money than Y. My house is bigger than Z’s. This happiness comes from competition, or, the comparison game (a major motivator in our society). But this isn’t the most reliable happiness. Things change. We fail, and failure brings a sense of worthlessness. It is a “dog eat dog” world: each person looking to his or her own good, and ultimately no one is fully satisfied or happy.

At level three we begin to achieve a more lasting and stable happiness—a moral life with many personal and societal benefits. It is called beatitudo, like the Beatitudes (blessed, happy) in Matthew’s gospel. This is the happiness that comes from doing good for others or seeing the good in others. This happiness thinks of the other first. But even this is a limited happiness. We cannot be someone else’s everything. What happens if we or they die? If our happiness is contingent on another, it dies with them. We are left with a feeling that “there must something more.”

And there is. The fourth level of happiness is called sublime beatitudo (or liminal beatitudo, meaning “up to the limit of happiness”). This category is hard to describe and to achieve. It seeks the fullness and perfection of goodness, beauty, truth, and love. While it also seeks the happiness of laetus, felix, and beatitudo, it moves beyond them to the transcendent. In a word, it seeks God, in whom “we live, and move, and have our being.” We cannot achieve this level of happiness on our own. Only with God’s grace can we move towards the “beatific vision,” the vision of God face-to-face, who is love. While we can move towards this vision in this life, it will only be achieved fully in the next. For now, it is “faith seeking understanding.” And happiness, too.

Msgr. Patrick S. Brennan

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL

Faith, Service, and Knowledge: Cathedral School's curriculum and school culture both focus on building a well-rounded leader with a strong foundation of faith, service, and knowledge. Cathedral School's teachers strive to teach compassion, foster friendships, encourage charity and community service, and inspire students to be the best they can be, all while providing a strong academic environment in which Cathedral School's graduates transition into the Catholic college preparatory high school of their choice.

Consider a Cathedral School education for your children. Call Mrs. Hatley at 503.275.9370 for a tour of the school. www.cathedral-or.org

OTHER ITEMS OF INTEREST

Catholic Women's Coffee & Fellowship: will meet in St. Joseph's Hall on June 1 from 8:10-9:30am. We've evolved from a once a month gathering to two times a month to accommodate varied schedules and to further promote the spirit of togetherness. All are welcome! Coffee, treats, community and conversation will be served. If you have any questions please contact Nancy Bartow at 503.781.4818.
