Responding to God's Call

In today's Gospel, Jesus admonishes us to “give to Caesar what belongs to Caesar” and to “give to God what belongs to God”.

It's usually easy to know what belongs to Caesar - to the government, that is: taxes and obedience to good laws are the basics.

Voting for candidates who support true values, like the right to life, is also basic.

In these senses, every Christian should be a model citizen.

But it's not always so easy to understand what belongs to God.

Rather, it's easy to know what belongs to Him - everything, since He is our Creator and our Savior - but it's hard to give it to Him.

Jesus has called all of us to be his followers.

And all of us have at least partially answered that call.

But this is not like a telephone call; we don't answer and then hang up.

Christ's call is ongoing.

As the Catechism puts it: God “never ceases to call every man to seek him, so as to find life and happiness” (#30).

He is constantly calling us to follow him more closely.

The best way to keep our hope healthy, so that we can persevere joyfully and meaningfully through life's trials, is by just as constantly answering “yes.”

God may be calling some to follow him as a full-time missionary, priest, religious, or consecrated lay person.

God may be calling others simply to take a little less time for self-indulgence and a little more time for self-giving, in prayer, service to our neighbors, or both.

Whatever call God has placed in our heart, let's put our hope in Him, be generous, and say yes.

God will make sure we never regret it.
